Dear Martin,

Three months have passed since Dedication Day, and the Chapel Organ has received a thorough testing. It has not been found lacking in any way! On the Sunday following April 14, two young women from our Dr. Martin Luther College presented a recital to another packed chapel. The Seminary student body continued to enjoy the organ's sounds to the end of the school year. The students in my Music in the Parish course were very interested as I removed panels to show them the inner workings. We have recently completed our Summer Quarter of Advanced Studies, and many pastors from the field commented approvingly. I mention all this to you to demonstrate that the organ has received a positive reception across the board here at Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary.

I am returning under separate cover the several organ dedication brochures you loaned me as I prepared our booklet. Once again I want to apologize for the unfortunate oversights in the stop list. I checked my original copy, and all the stops were there. They were eliminated by the printer. Unfortunately, I and several proofreaders did not catch the error.

I am hoping that you are remembering the mirror which we want to place on the organ. It would have come in handy several times during our Summer Quarter! Hopefully, it can be installed before our classes begin September 11.

I must say that I thoroughly enjoyed my association with you, Martin, and that my warm feelings for you have more to do than just with the organ. I consider you a fine Christian gentleman and wish you the Lord's richest blessings as you build instruments for his praise. I certainly hope our paths cross in the years ahead.

Cordially,

James P. Tiefel
